

Blue Ridge and PenTeleData provide Wi-Fi access for President

November 2005 Mount Pocono, Pa. Blue Ridge Communications and PenTeleData are jointly providing wireless Internet access at the Tobyhanna Army Depot for a visit from President Bush.

The Army Depot contacted PenTeleData earlier in the week about setting up and providing Wi-Fi Internet access for the duration of the President's visit.

"PenTeleData is extremely pleased and honored to provide Wi-Fi Internet access for the President and his staff during their visit to the Tobyhanna Army Depot," says Dean Hosier, Director of Marketing at PenTeleData.

PenTeleData's Professional Integration Services is setting up and installing wireless access points and a router, and Blue Ridge Communications—one of PenTeleData's cable company partners—is providing and installing the connection to make the service possible at the Army Depot.

"With the success of PenTeleData's ProLog Unleashed Wi-Fi hotspot service and our continuing efforts to provide the highest quality Internet service, PenTeleData is excited to have the opportunity to provide Wi-Fi Internet access for President Bush during his stop at the Tobyhanna Army Depot," says John Williams, General Manager of PenTeleData.
