

PenTeleData announces ProLog X5 accelerated dial-up Internet service

March 2004

Today, PenTeleData/ProLog Internet Service announces its new accelerated dial-up Internet service, ProLog X5. ProLog X5 will make existing dial-up web browsing up to 5 times faster and five times more fun.

ProLog X5 is available anywhere there are phone lines, plus there is no new equipment needed. It only takes a few clicks to download and install the software. ProLog X5 also includes all of the same features of the standard ProLog dial-up service including up to 5 e-mailboxes, 15 MB personal webpage, free customer service 7 days a week, free technical support 7 days a week, Usenet newsgroup access via GigaNews with 10GB transfers per month, online account management tools, SPAM filtering, pop-up ad stopper and so much more.

ProLog X5 is not only faster, more fun, and easy to install—it costs only one dollar a month in addition to your standard ProLog dial-up service, and works with most Microsoft® Windows™ -based computers purchased in the last four years.
