PENTELEDATA IS PROUD TO SERVE TUNKHANNOCK, PA

Tunkhannock was incorporated in 1841. The community’s name is based on an Indian term, which has been variously translated as “meeting of the waters.”

Tunkhannock is a historic, friendly Pennsylvania Route 6 Heritage Community and gateway to the Endless Mountains. Iroquois canoes, pioneer rafts, canal boats, and trains have all passed by this place, where Tunkhannock Creek—the “small stream” of its Native American name—flows into the Susquehanna River.

With the building of the North Branch Canal and the Lehigh Valley Railroad in the mid-nineteenth century, Tunkhannock became a hub of commerce and industry as well as the county seat. Today it is both the cultural and the commercial center of Wyoming County.

There’s plenty to see and do in this charming river town, including shopping, outdoor activities, enjoying the arts, and several local destinations. Downtown Tunkhannock boasts rows of brick storefronts, many constructed after a disastrous 1870 fire and now home to an eclectic assortment of shops and restaurants and the Dietrich Theatre. Dietrich Theatre was built in 1936 and completely renovated in 2001, this Art Deco building is owned and managed by the non-profit Wyoming County Cultural Center. In addition to first-run movies and film festivals, the Center offers art galleries and studio art and performing arts classes. The historic district features beautiful architecture, including Gothic Revival, Colonial Revival, Queen Anne. Many of the homes, churches, and businesses in this National Register Historic District hold the history of the town and the families who built them.
