PENTELEDATA IS PROUD TO SERVE CENTER VALLEY, PA

Center Valley is a community located in the central part of Upper Saucon Township in Lehigh County. It's not a distinct municipality, so its addresses, police, and government services are provided by Upper Saucon Township. Center Valley has a high-end shopping center, Promenade Saucon Valley. Area students attend Southern Lehigh School District, and two college campuses also call Center Valley home: DeSales University and Penn State Lehigh Valley.

The earliest European settlers arrived in the region over a 20-year period beginning in 1732 and were primarily of German, English and Welsh descent. In 1743 these immigrants formally organized the Township. Agriculture formed the basis of the Township's economy for most of its history. Wheat, rye, oats, corn, potatoes, clover, timothy, fruits and garden vegetables were some of the Township's early agricultural products. Access to trading and selling these products was provided by the precursor to Route 309, which rested in the same general location as the present highway and extended from Allentown to Philadelphia.

The Village of Center Valley formed the principle gathering spot for the Township and evolved as a linear community initially focused on the intersection of present-day Routes 309 and 378. By 1848, the village consisted of only a general store, hotel and a 60-acre farm. Construction of the North Pennsylvania Railroad through the Township in 1856 brought improved transportation and expanded access to urban markets. The rail line established its Center Valley Station on the east side of the Saucon Creek about a quarter of a mile east of the village nucleus. Center Valley continued to grow and by 1862 boasted not only a store and hotel, but also a post office, blacksmith shop, and shoemaker, along with several dwellings.

The Center Valley Station became an important shipping point for agricultural products from surrounding farms. The community around the station was at one point locally known as "Milk Town" because of the large quantity of milk that was shipped out of the area. According to the Bucks County Historical Society, two and one half million gallons of milk were shipped annually to the Philadelphia area via the railroad.

While we're on the topic of patriotism, it's worth mentioning that Memorial Day is observed on Monday, May 25th and is an annual day of remembrance to honor all those who died in service to the United States during peacetime and war. Many people visit cemeteries and memorials, and volunteers place American flags on graves at national cemeteries. A national moment of remembrance takes place at 3 PM local time.

In celebration of America's 250th Anniversary, we'd like to give away a family four pack of tickets to see the Lehigh Valley IronPigs at Coca-Cola Park on Saturday, June 20th. Enter to win by sending an email to chat@corp.ptd.net by Friday, May 15, 2026. Good luck!

I.T. CORNER

Business Continuity Plan

Mike Tyson's famous quote, "Everyone has a plan until they get punched in the face" applies just as well to Information Technology and business as a whole as it does to boxing. Many organizations have an I.T. disaster recovery plan on paper, but when a real incident hits ransomware, an outage, or data loss, that first "punch" often exposes gaps in communication, decision making, and readiness. A plan that has never been tested assumes calm conditions that rarely exist during a crisis, which is why tabletop exercises are so critical; they function like I.T. fire drills, allowing teams to rehearse realistic scenarios, clarify roles, and build confidence before it matters. Equally important is recognizing that true resilience goes beyond I.T.: a business continuity plan is companywide, encompassing backup workflows to keep production running, alternative processes when systems are unavailable, and out of band communication methods in case primary email, chat, or phone systems fail. Plans are important, but practiced, organization-wide plans are what keep a company operating and standing strong after the punch lands.

DID YOU KNOW?

Unlike his successors, George Washington never actually campaigned to be president: He was simply chosen by the popular demand of the electoral college. This happened for both his first and second terms in office, with the elections of 1789 and 1792. He was also the only president ever to unanimously receive all electoral votes.
